

Job offer Analyst Venture Capital - Life Sciences

Based in Paris and Munich, Kurma Partners is an important European player in the financing of Innovation in Healthcare and Biotechnology, from creation to growth capital.

Kurma Partners is about to launch a new Biotech Fund, Kurma Biofund III, with a target size of 150 M Euros that will invest in ambitious and fast growing European Biotech companies.

In order to help us generate the next investment opportunities for our new Fund, we are recruiting a new Analyst who will be responsible for the following missions:

- Detection and identification of new investment opportunities
- Screening and deep analysis of the opportunities
- Participation in due diligence and investment proposals
- Supporting portfolio management activities
- Keeping track of relevant news and trends in science and business

With a strong scientific background in the biomedical field (PhD or equivalent), you have already demonstrated your ability to perform in a demanding environment. You are passionate about biomedical innovation, and deeply care about bringing new technologies to patients.

The best candidates will also demonstrate strong analytical skills and strong interpersonal skills, that will help them to be autonomous and successful in this position.

Having a business training is a plus but is not required.

The working language is English; French or German is a plus.

The position can be based in Paris or Munich.

To apply send an email to: muriel.domine@kurmapartners.com and specify the title of the corresponding offer.